A PETRIFIED FOREST

Oh I wish that the world was a petrified forest
Cause now I have the best that life can offer
And I don't want to witness how time will take it
And I dare not to breathe for the fear I might break it
Though it's stronger everyday
I know the tricks that destiny can play

Oh I wish that the world was a petrified forest
Cause I don't want to see what lies round the corner
And I give up my wings, I refuse to fly
All I want is to keep this dream on my eyes
That no one touches anything
Cause that's the way I want things to be

And the wind standing still in the night
And the raindrops hanging from the sky
And the mountain bursts out the fire
And the world sinking down under lava

Take me high, so high, where the rivers are freezing
Where the air is so cold that the angels are sneezing
And let me sleep on a cloud and never disturb me
With the taste in my mouth of a fulfilled journey
But before you turn the clock of sand
Turn the corner of this page
So if I have to awake again
I'll know where happiness has its anchorage
