

I RAN A RED LIGHT

I ran a red light, I don't know why
I had stopped there a thousand times
But today I failed to pull the brake
Don't know what it was in my head

Maybe I was thinking of my wife
And the early old age in her face
Maybe I was thinking of my kids
And the filthy streets where they're being raised

Let them blame it on the booze
Let them build their perfect truths
Cause I never deserved in my whole life
All this glory, all this regard
Now the devil wears my name
I feed the vultures with my shame

No more crossroads in my way
Just a one way tunnel till the end
And one last station up around the bend
Cause I ran a red light and I know the price to pay

The ambulance came with its laughing siren
Men in white carrying stretchers
Taking away the innocent shadows
Those cameras flashing, those cameras flashing

Cause I ran a red light, and you know what?
I don't feel guilty after all
I have no tears left to cry
My heart is empty to the core

Now I'm in everybody's mouths
In every corner of the town
Now the devil wears my name
I feed the vultures with my shame

So many red lights in my way
So many red lights in my way
So many red lights in my way
But today, I ran a red light
Yes I did
